A RESOLUTION has been introduced in the Virginia Senate asking Mahone to resign.

ONE thousand acres of land have been leased in Boone county, Ky., by Eastern men, who expect to sink oil wells upon it.

SENATOR BECK foresees in the result of the late State elections the accession of McDonald, of Indiana, to the Presidency.

THE Germans of Ohio have determined to annihilate Governor Foster as a politician, and the job is considered not a difficult one.

A MOVEMENT that is likely to be of much interest to temperance people has been started against the rum-sellers of New York City.

CONGRESSMAN LANHAM, of Texas, represents a district of eighty-seven counties, some of which are as large as the State of Massachusetts.

THE indications are that the internal revenue collections will, this year, amount to one hundred and thirty million dollars, which is about one million more than was estimated.

SENATOR SHERMAN expresses the opinion that there is not going to be any split among the Democrats of Ohio, and that a solid front may be looked for at the Presidential election next year.

KENTUCKY'S corn crop this year is 75,000,000 bushels, Tennessee's the same, and only six States lead them, viz: Missouri and Kansas, equal; Illinois, Iowa, Indiana and Nebraska, in order named.

THE comet that is heading this way, is approaching gradually and will soon be visible to the naked eye. It will attain its largest proportions about the holidays, and will then be a conspicuous object in the evening sky.

REPORTS from eighty counties in Kansas, Arkansas, Missouri, Nebraska and Southwestern Iowa, are unanimous in stating that the winter wheat is in excellent condition, and in some localities there has been an increased acreage.

THE Government has had a genuine surprise in the shape of a party who declined a pension for services rendered during the late war. The declining persons are an aged couple residing in Terre Haute, Ind., who have had twenty-five children, four of whom were killed in the war. They have their objections to receiving a pension upon the grounds that the Government had done enough for them in emancipating their race.

PROFESSOR BROOKE, of the Red House Observatory at Phelps, New York, while searching for comets near the sun on the 6th inst., discovered a wonderful shower of telescopic meteors, some of which were moving southward and others northward. Professor Brooks believes that this display has some connection with the remarkable red light seen near the sun at sunrise and at sunset for several days last week, and that the earth is passing through a mass of meteoric dust or is enveloped in the tail of a gigantic comet.

SINCE the adoption of standard time four hundred applications have been filed with the patent office in Washington for clock dials and other devices intended to present the twenty-four hours in a convenient manner and without crowding the figures together. A large number of these applications have been rejected by the patent office upon evidence found in a musty old volume that Prince Soltykoff once possessed a watch made in the year 1547 upon the dial of which appeared the hours from one to twenty-four, arranged in two concentric circles.

NOW we hear of a young man in Yarkon who contracted with a farmer to work for him a year for his daughter and a double-barreled shot-gun. The contract has been faithfully performed, and the young man is now the happy possessor of the shot gun. The girl went back on the old man's bargain.—Western Republican.

Gen. Spinner, who had one thousand women under him as clerks and accountants in the U. S. Treasury, leaves upon record the testimonial that they counted more accurately and rapidly than men; their ability to detect counterfeiters proved to be superior in almost every test; that they were without an exception honest, and were invariably more careful and painstaking in their work.

True Temperance.

The following is an extract from a sermon delivered at Ann Arbor, Mich., by Rev. B. B. Pope, of the Methodist Church: "I have been desirous for years of an opportunity to address those who deal in intoxicating drinks. I have wished to try to present to them our real feelings toward them and their business; to show them that we are not their personal enemies, but that we desire their good and that of their families. I like to hear a man express his convictions fully and freely, whether they agree with mine or not. I like to hear the Catholic priest affirm his doctrines, even if he sends me to perdition because I am not connected with the 'Holy mother church.' I love to hear the roar of the floods as I go near my Baptist brethren, to hear the Unitarian give his belief—that is, when he finds any to give. Half truths I don't want to hear, for no one knows what the other half may be. Men cannot argue at all until they agree—that is, until they find some ground which they hold in common. There are some points in regard to drink on which all will unite. No man defends drunkenness. No sane man was ever known to wish his son or daughter to die a drunkard or to become one. If not his own, then not his neighbor's son or daughter. For whatever be our practice we assent to the golden rule. Now, whether dealers, or drinkers, or total abstainers, we all agree that strong drink is very perilous. Its devastation is seen throughout our land. It brings poverty, suffering, vice, and crime, and death. Whatever may be its use, its abuse fills our courts, our jails, our penitentiaries, our lunatic asylums. We have heard often enough to know now that sixty thousand men in this land go every year into drunkards' graves. You cannot draw too strong a picture of the evils arising from strong drink.

But drink is not the worst evil in this land. Drunkenness never ruined or destroyed a nation. Amongst all that have been overthrown, no people ever perished through strong drink alone. The drinking Germans were chaste and true, as Tacitus informs us. They fought with valor for freedom, and never ceased the strife with Rome until the legions of the empire were overthrown. Our drinking English ancestors won our hard-fought fields with stubborn courage. Our drinking Revolutionary fathers won our independence. What has killed nations? Lust has done it again and again. It destroyed Persia. It overthrew Rome. Mohammed prohibited wine, but permitted women. He would much better have given the wine cup and forbidden the harem. There is no commandment of the ten which says Thou shalt not drink, but there is one that says 'Thou shalt not kill,' and another 'Thou shalt not commit adultery.' Our women are fond of calling the fearful roll of dying drunkards sixty thousand a year, sixty thousand a year. Go into your bell-tower, sister. Watch the reeling, trembling line. See the features reddened, swollen, imbruted, the blue eyes, the putrescent noses. Strike the bell—one gone into a drunkard's grave. Eight minutes more—another stroke, another tumbles into his grave. And so on through the day and through the night, and through the year, every eight minutes a drunkard in a drunkard's grave, and his soul—where? But this great evil hides its brutal face in the presence of lust and its ravages. You cannot gather the statistics. It strikes in the dark. It will not open its graves under the sunlight, but it burrows everywhere and buries its victims so foully slain. I am told by many medical friends that my computations are moderate when I charge that twenty thousand die in this land each year, slain by the poisoned shafts of lust. Bodies rot away with a horror that eclipses the most fearful power of the final delirium which drink brings. Little children, who should be so pure and sweet, fester and putrefy because of the guilt of others. The wan, demented victims of hidden vice stagger to their graves. Pass your long procession through the streets. Mount to the belfry tower. Take the day for this procession, for the night must be reserved for greater horrors. Every two minutes, every two minutes of the twelve hours of the day, Lust already has killed two innocent babies who never see the light, slain by their own mothers' hand—delicate hands, jeweled hands, aristocratic hands—not in hovels so much as in mansions—hands spotted to all eternity with their own children's blood. Herod, the wretch, slew a few little ones in weeping Bethlehem that he might brace his uncertain throne. In cities long besieged, mothers at last, in dire extremity, have slain and eaten the little ones whom they could no longer nourish. But these murderers have no excuse but pleasure or indolence.

Mount your belfry-tower. Toll for the dead who never saw the light. Out of darkness into eternity. I am told that I am exceedingly moderate when I say that twenty-four thousand babies are slain each year by their own murderous mothers. They never saw the light. The drunkard has a grave. They have not even a grave to lie in. Sweet little ones whom angels might cherish, they are cast upon the dung-hill. Oh! tender woman, climb the belfry-tower. Make strong your hands to strike. For every moment of every night of all the year you must toll that bell of death. Let the lost spirits shriek, the foul devils laugh in baleful unison over these horrible holocausts. Since I came to Ann Arbor eight years ago, there has been no murder done through drink. Unless my medical friends strangely mistake, three hundred children have been slain in their own homes, on the very altar of life, by their own mothers' hands. Mothers who wreathed the fair flowers around the fairer faces of your children lying in white caskets robbed for the grave, you often think of the re-union not far distant, when your children shall welcome you to homes of light. Mothers who slew your little ones, what will you say when they see you, when they shudder at your presence, when they recoil from you—from you who tried in vain to keep them from life, and light, and love?

Chicago has 756 miles of sidewalk, and in the belief that they are transacting an awful amount of business, its inhabitants foot it over a million miles a day, or forty times the circle of the globe.

Sign prophets tell us the winter will be mild, since the muskrat has builded a thin-walled house, the squirrel has laid in a thin supply of nuts, and the corn husks are thin—all of which, in the face of a fierce northern blast, is a little too thin.

A social meeting of the congregation of the First Presbyterian Church will be held to-night at the residence of Mrs. Emma January. The friends of the Church are cordially invited.

A boy named Kincaid, on Thursday, fell from a wagon loaded with brick, and had his foot badly crushed by the wheel passing over it. The accident occurred on Third Street, near the new jail. The young man lives in Chester.

The list of delinquent tax-payers reported at the council meeting last night embraces the names of over eight hundred persons, of whom about six hundred are voters. The list is of usual interest to candidates this morning.

Our friends in the country by coming to Maysville this season will have access, probably, to the largest, best and cheapest stocks in the state. Every juvenile craving can be met from a nickel trinket to the limit of reason, and we will add that by coming early you will be glad you didn't wait for the crowd.

It seems to be a foregone conclusion that Mr. Dan Perrine, who has served so efficiently as Deputy Sheriff, will be honored with the Democratic nomination for High Sheriff. It will be an honor well bestowed and well merited. He has been attentive to his duties and faithful in their discharge, and has served in every respect most acceptably.

To the Democracy of Precinct No. 1.
There will be a convention at the Court House Saturday evening, December 8, at three o'clock p. m. sharp, to select nine delegates to represent said precinct in a county convention that meets in said Court House, December 10, 1883, to nominate a candidate for Sheriff. A full attendance of the Democracy is requested.

JOHN W. ALEXANDER, Chairman.

It is an indisputable fact that for every voter in Maysville who favors hog breeding in the city there are five who oppose it. It rests, therefore, with the latter to say whether or not the filthy business shall be continued. If they have the courage to vote as they think the business can be abolished by an overwhelming majority and the town freed from its blackest stain. Let every man who loves old Maysville and feels an interest in seeing her keep up in the march of improvement, make up his mind to vote his true sentiments at the election in January.

PERSONALS.

Mrs. Madron C. Blaine is visiting the family of Mr. Charles Plister.

Mr. John McIlvane, of the hardware house of Owens, McIlvane & Co., left last night for a short visit to Cincinnati.

COUNTY POINTS.

MAYSVILLE.

J. A. Jackson returned from Lewis county Saturday.

L. J. Sharpe, of Cincinnati, was with us last Tuesday night.

It takes a letter eight days to go from this place to London. Why is it so slow?

F. B. Brodick was arrested at the Stone-wall House on Tuesday evening.

Those who killed hogs recently are having some trouble to save their meat.

Enis Myall sold eight fat hogs that averaged 48 pounds. Who can beat it?

Mrs. Jonathan Myall, of Bourbon county, is visiting friends and relatives here.

The lame green flies the past few days have been making music about the house like springtime.

G. W. Blatterman is exercising himself in our midst by carrying a triple-barrel gun through the streets.

On Sunday John D. Raymond's little girls, while playing about the house, was run over by a hog and badly bruised.

Two gentlemen from Minerva stopped at the Stone-wall house Tuesday night. They were looking for a stolen horse.

William F. Fogg, of the Springdale stock farm, left on the 6th inst. with two car-loads of short horn cattle for his Missouri farm.

With only two hundred inhabitants combat her. Move to Minerva if you want to educate your children.

Russell West had a bay mare stolen from his stable on last Wednesday night. The mare has a star in forehead and a white shank on her hind leg. If anyone has had the disem-pared, he offers a good reward.

The pupils of Dover Academy will give an entertainment in the Baptist Church, at this place on Friday evening next. The play is entitled, "Red Riding Hood's Rescue, or the Dangers of Disobedience." and is played in five acts, and is said to be grand. They gave an exhibition at Dover on last Friday evening, and were so highly commended that they have concluded to come to Minerva and give the people of this locality a chance of seeing one of the best plays scarcely ever witnessed outside of an opera house. Let everybody come. Proceeds for the benefit of the Dover school house.

Call.
Mr. F. H. Trazel: If you will consent to become a candidate for Councilman in the Third Ward, you will receive the hearty support of
MANY VOTERS.

Nothing Like It.

No medicine has ever been known so effectual in the cure of all those diseases arising from an impure condition of the blood as Scovill's Sarsaparilla, or blood and liver syrup, for the cure of scrofula, white swellings, rheumatism, pimples, blotches, eruptions, venereal sores and diseases, consumption, goitre, boils, cancers, and all kindred diseases. No better means of securing a beautiful complexion can be obtained than by using Scovill's Blood and Liver Syrup, which cleanses the blood and gives beauty to the skin.
